

Save your page-a-day calendar stands!

Don't throw away your page-a-day calendar! Save the plastic frame and use them as book holders. These work especially well for small board books. It helps to keep your hands free to hold your child and model communication board use!

This great tip came from a presentation I attended at Closing the Gap in Minneapolis a few years ago. I apologize for not being able to cite the exact source.

If you know who originated this idea, please let me know so they can be given proper credit!

Here is another neat idea for a book stand. Use the dense foam packing material from computers. You might get some free from the local electronics store. Cut a lip for the book and you've got a free book stand. This can also be used to hold an iPad or other tablet pc.

